

Biography

Micah Marie, who stars as Elsa in the film Reunion, was raised in Los Angeles where she attended the prestigious Crossroads School for the Arts and Sciences. Micah's first loves were acting and dancing. "My father was a radio personality so he had knowledge of the entertainment business and made sure I always had opportunities to perform. I was a child actor and I loved it. Every minute on set or on stage was a gift, and still is." Micah has appeared in numerous commercials and print ads for McDonald's, Coca-Cola, Jergens and many others. In addition, Micah has guest starred on popular television shows such as Disney's Smart Guy.

In 1995, she moved to Germany and toured internationally with major label recording artist, Satman John. As a top dancer and background vocalist, Micah performed throughout Europe and Asia. Eventually returning to Los Angeles, she attempted to work behind the scenes in television production but found everyone telling her to stop "wasting her talents behind the camera." Working hard as a production coordinator gave Micah the "realization that I had to fight harder to make it as an artist. I needed to do what I loved."

Off to try New York as an actor and print model, Micah also took time there to focus on motherhood during the first two years of her son Dakota's life. Again returning to Los Angeles, Micah is currently recording her first album, doing shows with her group, STARRA, starring in The Man Who Couldn't, a Brandon Wilson Film and in Reunion as Elsa, a pretty, down to earth dancer who longs for a relationship with her sister.
